Figure 1. A schematic diagram of the experimental setup. The light source (laser) emits a beam of light that passes through a lens and a beam splitter. The beam splitter splits the light into two paths: one path goes through a polarizer and a lens, and the other path goes through a lens and a polarizer. The two paths converge at a second beam splitter, which then splits the light into two final paths. The final paths are detected by two photodetectors.
